Executive Compensation

Casey's work in the executive compensation area includes assisting clients with the design and implementation of equity incentive plans, phantom stock plans, non-qualified deferred compensation plans, and executive employment and severance agreements. She also regularly advises clients on the application of applicable tax rules, including Internal Revenue Code sections 409A and 280G.

Representative Experience: Last year, Casey counseled more than 100 privately held companies on the strategic design and implementation of their equity incentive arrangements, phantom stock plans, sophisticated bonus plans, and executive employment agreements. Most of this work has been for private equity portfolio companies in various industries.

Retirement Plans

Casey's work with qualified retirement plans includes assisting clients with the design and implementation of 401(k) plans, profit sharing plans, and pension plans. She frequently advises clients on complex 401(k) plan issues, including advice related to implementing student loan matching contribution programs, integrating plans following a change in control transaction, addressing issues specific to private equity portfolio companies, tax consequences of contributions to and distributions from employer-sponsored retirement plans, and complying with evolving IRS and DOL regulations and correction programs.

Representative Experience: Casey provides continuing, year-after-year employee benefits support to multiple members of the Fortune 50. As part of this work, she provides ongoing weekly support to an aerospace industry client that sponsors one of the largest 401(k) plans in the United States.

Health & Welfare Plans

Casey's work in the health and welfare space centers around addressing critical issues affecting group health and welfare benefit plans under the Affordable Care Act (ACA), the Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act, HIPAA, COBRA, ERISA, and Code Sections 125 and 105(h). Casey also advises employers on the complicated welfare plan issues that arise in the context of change in control transactions, including MEWA avoidance, successor employer issues under COBRA, and benefits transition issues.

Transactions

In addition to her traditional executive compensation and employee benefits work, Casey frequently works with members of the firm's Transactions Practice to advise clients on the executive compensation and employee benefits issues arising in mergers and acquisitions. Casey also provides transactional support directly to clients and other law firms that are based outside of the United States or do not have robust executive compensation and employee benefits teams.

Casey is a member of the firm's Innovative Technology and Health Care & Life Sciences Sector teams, which consist of a cross-disciplinary team of attorneys and professions focused on understanding the impact of innovative technology, including artificial intelligence, and helping clients develop legal strategies for their health care and technology businesses.
