Shane McDonald is a trial lawyer in the firm's Litigation Department. His practice focuses on the following areas:

- Energy industry business litigation
- Oil and gas litigation
- Complex commercial litigation
- Personal injury defense
- Health care litigation

Shane's energy litigation practice includes the representation of oil and gas companies specializing in oilfield services, drilling and completion services, midstream operations, exploration and production, and marketing. He has also represented wind farm developers and solar energy developers. His commercial litigation practice includes the representation of real estate developers, health care providers, investing and asset management firms, manufacturing companies, and distributing companies.

Shane has represented clients in litigation in Texas state court and in federal courts throughout the country. He has also represented clients in private arbitrations before the American Arbitration Association and Judicial Arbitration and Mediation Services, Inc.

Shane is involved in every aspect of his cases — from preliminary investigations and assessments through trial and the appellate process. He is also routinely involved in counseling clients on general business matters, contractual compliance, and risk management and avoidance. No matter the stage of the dispute or litigation at hand, Shane is an asset that aims to add value for the benefit of his clients.

Shane is a member of the Energy Litigation and Business Litigation & Dispute Resolution Practice Groups and the Energy Sector.

Representative Experience*
