Michael Noonan is a real estate attorney skilled at obtaining land use and zoning entitlements and building consensus between property owners, government officials, and community groups. As a problem solver, he works closely with clients and regulating bodies to come up with creative solutions to the legal problems facing building owners and developers.

Michael has experience securing special uses, rezonings, text amendments, administrative relief, subdivisions, public way, sign permits, and other land use approvals for a wide variety of property owners. He represents owners of institutional, commercial, office, and residential property, as well as developers, in securing land use and zoning entitlements from state and local governments. Michael has also worked on unique matters such as cannabis dispensaries, high-rise signs, renewable energy projects, and religious uses.

In addition to land use and zoning, Michael has handled eminent domain matters in Illinois, matters before the Chicago Department of Administrative Hearings, and in the Municipal Department of the Circuit Court of Cook County. While the primary focus of his land use practice is Chicago and its surrounding suburbs, he also has experience advising on land use matters across the country.

Michael is a member of the Real Estate Practice Group, Energy Sector, and Cannabis Industry Team.
