Emily Spallino is a corporate lawyer with Foley & Lardner LLP, based in the New York office. Emily contributes to the closing of large transactions and helping high-net-worth clients navigate all types of business transactions. She is a member of the firm's Business Law and Mergers & Acquisitions Practices and the Energy Sector. Her client work focuses on renewable energy project development, energy mergers & acquisitions, and corporate governance matters.

Prior to joining Foley, Emily worked as an attorney at a global law firm in Minneapolis and served as a summer fellow for The Honorable Donovan W. Frank, U.S. District Court in Saint Paul, Minnesota.
