Robert (Rob) Stewart is a fearless litigator and trial lawyer. He works on high-stakes business disputes that involve fraud, trade secret misappropriation, false advertising, breach of contract, and defamation. When faced with their toughest cases, clients turn to Rob for his strategic sense and skillful ability to persuade judges and juries.

Rob represents various clients throughout the United States, including tech startups, healthcare facilities and providers, hospitality and gaming groups, landowners and developers, and solar and renewable energy companies. With a strong work ethic and command of the law, Rob takes charge in his clients' pre-suit investigations, critical depositions, and trials. Several clients turn to Rob for their matters in Las Vegas, Nevada, where Rob actively litigates, as well as in California and Utah.

Before joining Foley, Rob clerked for two years for U.S. District Court Judge Anthony W. Ishii in California.
