Emily Weber is a nationally sought-after lawyer known for her deep experience in the health care sphere and her no-nonsense approach to legal advice. Having spent over a decade in-house at prominent academic medical centers and serving in numerous outside counsel roles while in private practice, Emily provides a perspective that few attorneys do. Clients seek her out for her understanding of the health care industry and her ability to find business-forward solutions. A member of the firm's Health Care Practice Group and Health Care & Life Sciences Sector, Emily represents clients around the country on complex health care regulations and transactions, governance, fraud and abuse, and health innovation matters.

Emily's clients benefit from her ability to think on her feet, provide succinct advice, navigate risks with ease, and genuinely understand their legal considerations. Clients laude Emily: "Emily's time as associate in-house legal counsel at the largest academic health system in Colorado combined with her experience as a partner at two well-respected private firms have provided her with a broad, business savvy, and sophisticated knowledge base. Equally as important, she spends time building effective relationships with her clients so that she can better serve them."

– CEO health system and former CEO of top 10 teaching hospital

Emily's hands-on experience with operations and regulatory compliance allows her to translate business requirements into exceptional legal solutions for her clients. She regularly provides counsel on:

- Creative financial relationships between hospitals/health systems and physicians
- Physician compensation structures focusing on unique and novel incentives
- Regulatory compliance for ambulatory surgery centers and related investors
- Collaborations between universities and health systems for academic affiliations
- Behavioral health compliance, reimbursement, and delivery methods
- Intellectual property sharing between academic medical centers/health systems and for-profit entities

- Innovative collaborative relationships changing health care delivery
- Fraud and abuse issues, including federal and state anti-kickback and self-referral compliance
- Health care “innovation” programs, both establishing the program and subsequent investments
- Joint ventures and other strategic affiliations
- Medical staff matters and disputes

In addition to her robust health care practice, Emily serves as office managing partner of the firm’s Denver office. In this leadership role, she is successfully helping to grow Foley’s practice in Colorado.
